FAROS

WHAT IS IT AND WHY

CRENCO is an innovative socio-educational project that aims to implement intergenerational work projects between educational centers, residences and homes for the elderly during school hours, with the aim of training these values from childhood through their own experience.

The increase of the life expectancy and the decrease of the birth rate are a reality in the current and future society. That is why we have to work to create an integrating culture that can deepen these years of life while educating in fundamental values for the new generations.

PROFESSIONAL TRAINING

Given that there are no professionals trained to work with these two group profiles at the same time, we propose the search for specific training in this area with the aim of providing tools and work strategies to the professionals who develop these intergenerational training.

NETWORK WORK

We want to build a platform where educational centers, residences and nursing homes can have a common work space, where they would have tools, resources and spaces that would help to manage and develop their own work projects. A combined training with face-to-face interaction and networking spaces.

EDUCATIONAL CENTER

The educational centers are a very important nucleus, where it is easy to start working on a change of vision from childhood, including intergenerational work projects during school hours. The centers that want to join the project will develop the guide program designed and meditated specifically for the student profile. The duration of the program will be a school year with sessions given once a month where students and seniors will share recreational and socio-educational activities.

RESIDENCES | HOMES OF ELDERLY PERSONS

Active aging is, yesterday, today and tomorrow and therefore we must work to create a culture that allows us to move forward and change. Keeping older people active and in constant collaboration and participation with young people would give them the possibility of feeling useful, continuing to be trained and participating in community life.

DONATIONS

We need support and collaboration to be able to build this initiative that would make a very powerful participation tool available to schools and seniors. We want to create a fairer society in which all generations can continue to have opportunities.
